RE: Renovation of Palette's Restaurant

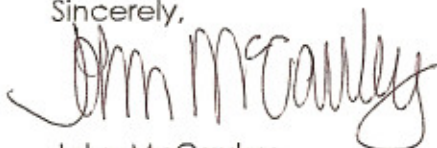

I have been overseeing the design and construction of the Hamilton building addition to the Denver Art Museum for the past six-years. One of our projects in this overall construction scheme was the complete renovation of the existing Palette's Restaurant. This project was approximately $1 million including the kitchen equipment. Over a year ago the Denver Art Museum engaged Larry Johnson of Kitchen Tech to assist us in the planning for this renovation as well as the Dining and Kitchen design, procurement of all Kitchen equipment, and installation of this Kitchen equipment work.

It was my great pleasure to work with Larry and his sons on this project. They were fast to react to our design requests, willing to look at multiple plan solutions, understood the working restrictions within the allocated spaces, and were forthcoming in their pricing of the equipment and installation costs. As in most such renovations, the Restaurant user made last minute changes and adjustments that Kitchen Tech willingly undertook without hesitation and with pricing fairness and rapidity. I have to admit that this kitchen renovation proceeded without a hitch and was performed within our schedule and cost expectations. I always felt that the pricing we received from Kitchen Tech was genuine and verifiable. I was always comfortable in requesting further information from Kitchen Tech and they were always willing to provide information accurately and quickly.

I would highly recommend Kitchen Tech for any new or renovated Kitchen project in the future.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions about the terrific performance of Kitchen Tech on our project

Sincerely,

John McCauley
